<td>Officers were dispatched to residence on a suspicious subject knocking at the door. Officers arrived on scene and discovered Reporting Party (R/P) ex-boyfriend at the apartment door. The ex-boyfriend was given a plastic bag with his belongings but he wasn’t satisfied with this. The ex-boyfriend wanted the keys and paperwork for a car that he had bought for R/P. Because the vehicle wasn’t in ex-boyfriends name Officers advised him he would have to have the title transferred into his name at the Secretary of State. Officers advised the subject he would have to leave the property and deal with the vehicle later. The subject was very upset with what the Officers told him and he got on the elevator and went down to the first floor. Officers went downstairs to make sure subject left the property but he couldn’t be located. Officers then received a radio broadcast that the subject was back at R/P’s apartment. Officers returned to the apartment and observed subject had forced entry into R/P’s apartment. The subject had forced entry into several interior doors of the apartment as well. The subject was taken into custody for Home Invasion.</td>
